PREFACE

JANE AUSTEN recognised her own limitations when she likened her art to fine brush-work on a "little bit (two inches wide) of ivory", and her admirers have set themselves to a particular examination of her tiny panels until it might seem that they could yield no more results. In this work no one has been more accurate or more illuminating than Dr. R. W. Chapman, whose edition of the Novels has a distressing air of finality—distressing, that is, to anyone who would follow in his path. I am the more grateful, therefore, that he did not seriously encroach upon the field of bibliography, where I happen to find my special pleasure, and through which I can best express my homage to the genius of Miss Austen. Like most artists, she did not herself possess the bibliographical sense, and in 1815 she directed her printer to put the dedication of Emma to the Prince Regent on the title-page. She confessed, in reply to Murray's puzzled inquiry whether that really was her wish, that she had never noticed the proper place for a dedication (Life, pp. 318-319). Proof-sheets caused her considerable anguish, and she did not succeed in eliminating all the "typical errors" from her books. But the innocence of authors is no protection against the bibliographical curiosity of the present day.

I. ORIGINAL EDITIONS

No one who is at all sensitive to the right relations between the outsides of the early editions of so many famous books and their contents can fail to appreciate the special propriety of these issues of Jane Austen's novels. The format, typography and binding, whether the original boards or contemporary half-calf, all seem somehow to be full of the spirit of the period, and to read any of them in this shape gives a definite addition to the reader's pleasure.

Sense and Sensibility was published at 15s. for the three volumes, Pride and Prejudice at 18s. Miss Austen declared that the publisher "shall ask 1l. 1s. for my two next and 1l. 8s. for my stupidest of all", but in spite of this Mansfield Park cost 18s. and Emma 1l. 1s. Even the four volumes of Northanger Abbey and Persuasion cost only 24s. To read any of these now in the original boards is a satisfaction which only the very opulent could enjoy, even were the state of the paper joints of the covers usually not too delicate for it to be bibliophilically permissible; but anyone may be allowed to enjoy a bound copy, which at its best may be an even more delicate repast, some of the binders of the period having been able to invest the volumes with a demure neatness which is most comforting.

Copies of the novels in original boards have for many years been expensive items in the booksellers' catalogues, but bound copies have been attainable by the ordinary person until comparatively recent years, and if he were gifted with economic foresight it is not so long since they might have been had for a negligible sum. In 1913 my brother (an economist) stated in my hearing his belief that first editions of Jane Austen were selling much below their value, whether estimated on the basis of their intrinsic merit or their rarity. The timely warning has its satisfactory result in the shelf in my library filled by a complete set of the original issues, including the second editions, which proved to be almost the most difficult to obtain—especially with their half-titles in position (one indeed still lacks them), but on that depends a story soon to be unfolded. Since that time the cultivation of Jane Austen's market has proceeded on an ascending scale of intensity, and the books have appreciated at a rate of interest which has surprised even the prescient economist. It is therefore remarkable that the bibliography of the novels has not been sooner investigated in detail, the book buyer being the more in need of protection the more expensive his quarry, and how much in the present instance he stood in need of it will here become apparent.

To anyone who is accustomed to the bibliographical intricacies of books published in the seventeenth or eighteenth centuries the collation of Jane Austen's novels will not be difficult. But peculiarities, delightful to the trained eye, are introduced by the fact that the different volumes of one edition of a novel were printed usually at two, and sometimes at three, different offices. Consequently the imprints found at the ends of the volumes, and, except in the case of Sense and Sensibility, on the backs of the half-titles, suggest attractive possibilities of confusion—attractive to the bibliographer, but repellent to a more commercial intelligence.

This Bibliography has been for many years in preparation, and I have shrunk year by year from publishing the unfortunate facts; but I have at length brought myself to the point, and my friends must not imagine I have been actuated by any malicious motives. It has all arisen from the hatred engendered in the hearts of binders of the period 1811 to 1818 by the sight of a half-title, binders otherwise so gentle and discreet in their reactions to the novels of Jane Austen. In short, they ripped them out, and copy after copy has come down to us with every outward attraction, but lacking within the crowning grace of a half-title. This unfortunate practice is naturally regarded with disfavour by the modern book-collector who likes his bibliolatrical loves to be immaculate. Some booksellers have found themselves unable to inflict so cruel a disappointment on their customers, and they have sought to temper the wind by supplying the missing leaves from complete copies of the second editions (where such existed). The raping of a second edition could surely be justified by the act of restoring to its "pristine state" a copy of the first edition. But, alas, the restoration was often more apparent than real. The half-titles in the two editions were never exactly alike, and unless the greatest care was exercised a volume may even be found to have the imprints of different printers on the verso of the half-title (thus restored) and at the bottom of the last page. "Sense and Sensibility would at any rate be free from such unpleasant suspicions", whispers the yet hopeful owner, "for the half-titles carry no imprints ". Even there, I fear, the light from my bibliographical torch must fall without fear or favour. The rules above and below the words on the half-titles are of quite different lengths in the two editions, so that a substituted half-title can be at once detected. Emma and Northanger Abbey and Persuasion are fortunately both exempt, since there were no second editions. Emma may even provide a surprise of the right kind, for the half-title in the first volume was printed on the last leaf instead of the first, and so it has sometimes escaped the binder's fury. The half-titles in Northanger Abbey and Persuasion are usually placed between the preliminary leaves and the text in each volume, so that they too have often escaped. It is to be feared that sometimes even copies "in original boards, uncut", have been subjected to the same process of restoration with insufficient attention to the bibliographical niceties, so that copies the most original in outward appearance may present the oddest inconsistencies within.

I have considered it to be my duty as the first of Jane Austen's bibliographers to allow no loophole for misunderstanding in the future. This preoccupation will account for the rather disproportionate space given to facsimile reproductions, for I have caused line blocks to be made from the title-page of volume one of each edition, from the half-titles of every volume of each edition, and from each label where these could be found. The facsimiles are not guaranteed to be accurate to a fraction of a millimetre, but are sufficiently near the originals for all practical purposes. Labels are hardly ever found quite undamaged, and no attempt has been made to supply in the facsimiles the deficiencies of the originals from which they were made. For the loan of examples of most of them I am indebted to the courtesy of Messrs. Elkin Matthews, for a few to Mr. Richard Jennings and to Mr. W. T. Spencer.

II. FIRST AMERICAN EDITIONS

Miss Austen did not have the satisfaction of seeing her novels reprinted in the United States of America during her lifetime, and the demand for them there does not appear to have made itself felt until 1832. All the novels were reprinted at Philadelphia in that year or in 1833. These first American editions are exceedingly scarce, and I should probably be myself unaware of their existence but for the fortunate chance of finding some years ago in a London bookseller's catalogue at 5s. each perfect copies of Elizabeth Bennet (as Pride and Prejudice is called) and Northanger Abbey in their original bindings; more recently an imperfect copy of Persuasion has come from Newcastle. None of these editions is to be found in any English library that I have consulted, and

I failed to obtain any of them from American booksellers. In the end I was able to obtain descriptions of those I did not possess from a correspondent, Mrs. M. B. Meriwether of Columbia, S.C., who found that many even of the American libraries did not contain them. It is difficult to explain their rarity, as fairly large editions are likely to have been printed if they were worth publishing at all, but they have now been rescued from complete oblivion. I have reproduced only the title-pages and labels of the two novels which I obtained in 1918. None of the volumes possesses a half-title, and it is probable that the title-pages of some of them were printed at the end of the last sheets, as will be seen from the collations, but the paper has no watermark, so that the original relations of odd leaves cannot be established.

III. FRENCH TRANSLATIONS

The remarkable fact that all Jane Austen's novels were translated into French and published in Paris within a few years of their appearance in England has almost escaped the notice of her biographers and critics. Two were published before her death, but there is no reference to them in her remaining letters, and the translations may have been made without her knowledge. This is the more singular, as they seem to have enjoyed considerable popularity, so that Sense and Sensibility and Persuasion had been printed twice by 1828, and Pride and Prejudice was published at two independent Parisian offices in the same year, 1822. Some of these translations have the additional distinction of being the first illustrated editions of the novels. The translators seem to have had difficulty in finding satisfactory French equivalents for the titles of the novels, and they have consequently in several instances been altered. Two of the novels, Northanger Abbey and Persuasion, have been again translated in more recent years, and even the title of Northanger Abbey has been changed, somewhat unnecessarily, to Catherine Morland. At the end of this section I have added the only other translation of which I know, namely, Pride and Prejudice in Spanish, published in Madrid in 1924.

The early French translations are all exceedingly rare. There were in all nine editions published in the years 1815 to 1828. Only one of these, L'Abbaye de Northanger, 1824, is to be found in the British Museum, and I do not know of any others in Great Britain. I have been unable to obtain any of them through booksellers in London or Paris; and several quay-side hunts have failed to produce anything more relevant than one or two translations of other female authors. In fact, the only copies of the books that I have seen, besides the single example in the British Museum, are in the Bibliothèque Nationale, where a complete series in the original wrappers has been preserved. Fortunately these appear never to have been read, and are therefore in perfect condition for making descriptions. Mr. Cosmo Gordon has assisted in the completion of these, as the regulations at the Bibliothèque Nationale make it impossible to see more than three volumes of a book at one time, so that a second visit, for which I myself had no opportunity, was needed to deal with the fourth volumes of some of the novels.

I have reproduced the title-pages of all the early translations, and two of the engraved frontispieces.

IV–V. COLLECTED EDITIONS AND SEPARATE REPRINTS

After the publication of Northanger Abbey and Persuasion in 1818, no further edition of any of the novels was published in England until Bentley reprinted all of them in 1833. The appearance of Bentley's edition, which contains in volume one a memoir of the author by Henry Austen, was an important event, as it was the beginning of an interest in Jane Austen's works which has never flagged since that date. The edition is best known in the five volumes in red cloth prepared for separate sale, but it was also issued in green cloth with different preliminary leaves for sale as a set. It is very uncommon in this form and is an exceedingly attractive book. Both forms have the engraved frontispieces and title-pages which constitute the first illustrations of Jane Austen published in England. One of the frontispieces is reproduced here. Bentley had bought the copyright of all the novels, except Pride and Prejudice, from Henry and Cassandra Austen for £250 (Life, p. 404), and in so doing had concluded a shrewd bargain. He continued to reprint both the sets and the separate volumes for more than half a century, the second Steventon edition of 1886 being the last edition, which has come to my notice, issued by this publisher. The books were reprinted at so many dates and so few of these issues have been preserved in the public libraries that I have probably not recorded all of them, and I have not seen all those that I have recorded. This does not greatly trouble my bibliographical conscience, as the different issues are not of any particular importance. Until the year 1886 Bentley's editions held the field. Between this date and 1923 seven other collected editions were published, but none of them received any very large amount of editing. This defect was finally remedied in 1923 by the appearance of Dr. R. W. Chapman's Oxford edition, which for editorial care and general excellence is never likely to be superseded. Two further collected editions have been published since then, one of them seeking popular support by virtue of being printed "complete in one volume".

Meanwhile from the year 1833 onwards separate reprints of the novels have trickled steadily from the press. I have recorded the following numbers of each:

Sense and Sensibility	25
Pride and Prejudice	35
Mansfield Park	19
Emma	20
Northanger Abbey and Persuasion	13	22
Northanger Abbey only	5
Persuasion only	4

A few of these bear American imprints, and there may have been others which have escaped my notice; the figures, however, seem to settle once and for all which is the most popular of the novels, Pride and Prejudice heading the list by a clear majority of ten. The fluctuations of popular taste during the Victorian, Edwardian and Georgian periods might be further illustrated by means of a graph, but the information would be incomplete, as I am unable to record the actual number of copies printed and sold in each case. Many of these reprints are not to be found in the public libraries, and some of them may be accounted rarities, particularly with their advertisement leaves and in their original coloured wrappers, the fragile beauties of which call up vivid reminders of the railway bookstalls of the period. A copy of Sense and Sensibility in my own library, published in 1884 in Routledge's Sixpenny Novels, with a coloured wood engraving (unsigned) on the wrapper, has on the margins of its leaves pencilled remarks by Henry Festing Jones, who was apparently unable to speak owing to a sore throat—"Butler is going to bring me Lovell the Widower—Thackeray", "Talk, and I don't a bit mind smoking", etc. On the back wrapper is printed a "Curious & beautiful optical illusion Presented by the Proprietors of Pears' Soap". Some of the leaves are unopened.

VI–VII. LETTERS, MISCELLANEA

Jane Austen's letters were first edited in 1884 by Lord Brabourne, and were mostly reprinted in the Life and Letters by W. and R. A. Austen-Leigh. But their final enshrinement is not yet completed, and this ceremony, presently to be performed by the competent hands of Dr. R. W. Chapman, is eagerly awaited.

The Miscellanea, though neither numerous nor important, are welcome morsels for those whose appetites have been slightly jaded by constant re-reading of the novels, and they have deserved the elegant finality which has been accorded to them by the Oxford editions of 1925–1927. Other juvenilia have been printed in Charades, 1895, and in Love and Freindship, which has, surprisingly enough, been printed five times since 1922. The demand for Duologues and Dialogues from Jane Austen seems to have ceased after 1912.

VIII. BIOGRAPHY AND CRITICISM

This section, containing both books and periodicals, consists of 185 entries. Large as it is, I make no pretence that it is complete, though it is not likely that anything of importance has been omitted. The earliest entries are the celebrated reviews by Sir Walter Scott and Archbishop Whately in the Quarterly Review of 1815 and 1821. Almost the latest is an article published in America maintaining that Scott did not write the first, both being really by Whately. Attention may be directed to the dawn of true Jane Austen scholarship in 1893–94, when A. W. Verrall published two brilliant contributions in the Cambridge Review. The stream of comment has swollen greatly since that date, and it is difficult to believe that much more can remain to be said. The biographical aspect has also received very full attention, chiefly by members of the author's family, who most easily had access to any records that remained, and particularly to reminiscences that had been handed down orally by her nephews and nieces. The first brief memoir was written by Jane Austen's brother, Henry, and printed with the first edition of Northanger Abbey and Persuasion in 1818. Another by the same was printed in the first volume of Bentley's edition, 1833. A more extended Memoir was published by her nephew, J. E. Austen-Leigh, in 1870, and this was revised in 1871. Finally the authoritative Life and Letters, A Family Record, by W. and R. A. Austen-Leigh, was published in 1913, and this is likely to remain the chief source of biographical materials.

The iconography of Jane Austen is of disappointing brevity. The Memoir of 1870 contains an engraved portrait which is stated to have been made after a drawing by Cassandra Austen. I have tried to obtain news of the drawing, but it seems to have disappeared completely, and the engraving, unsatisfying as it is, is reproduced here for want of anything better. The oil-painting by Zoffany which appears as frontispiece to Lord Brabourne's edition of the Letters and to the more recent Life and Letters is of very doubtful authenticity and completes the list of portraits of Jane Austen.

IX. BOOKS FROM JANE AUSTEN'S LIBRARY

The last section contains a brief account of a few books which show undoubted evidence of having been at one time in Miss Austen's possession. Others will probably be found, though it is unlikely that she ever owned an extensive library. The books recorded here are all of a serious nature, and it is possible that she subsisted on the lending libraries for her novels, or on borrowing from her friends. Thus Mr. John Sparrow has a copy of Mrs. Radcliffe's The Italian which has the signature of Anne Lefroy, and it is tempting to suppose that Miss Austen, who refers to the book in Northanger Abbey, read it in this copy belonging to her friend. A full list of the literary references found in her writings is given at the end of volume five of the Oxford edition of the Novels, and from this an idea of the extent of her reading may be obtained.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I have already recorded my indebtedness to Mrs. M. B. Meriwether of the University of South Carolina, to Mr. Cosmo Gordon, and to the various owners who have kindly lent me books for making facsimiles. I have also received valuable help from Miss Mabel A. Zahn, who has sent me descriptions of all the Jane Austen volumes in the library of Mr. A. Edward Newton and in the H. V. Jones collection, though I fear these acknowledgements are seven years overdue. Dr. R. W. Chapman has looked through the proof-sheets, and he has been seconded in this task by Mr. John Sparrow. I am additionally grateful to Dr. Chapman and to Mr. R. A. Austen-Leigh for their frequent help and encouragement during the eight years over which the compilation of this book has spread itself.

Note : The first sketch for Sense and Sensibility was composed about 1795 with the title Elinor and Marianne (Life, p. 80). It was written in the form of letters and was read aloud, but " it is difficult to guess between whom the letters can have passed, for in the novel Elinor and Marianne are never parted, even for a single day " (ibid.). The book in its final and much-altered form was begun in November 1797 (Memoir, p. 47) at Steventon. It was revised and prepared for the press at Chawton, 1809–1810 (Memoir, p. 95). The author was correcting the proofs in April 1811 : " I am never too busy to think of S. and S. I can no more forget it than a mother can forget her sucking child : . . . I have had two sheets to correct, but the last only brings us to Willoughby's first appearance " (Letters, ii. 90), i.e. the end of sheet E, vol. i. p. 96. Advertisements of the work appeared in the Morning Chronicle for October 31, November 7 and November 28, 1811 (Novels, ed. Chapman, S. and S., p. xi), so that it was probably published in October or November. The three volumes were issued in boards at 15s. They were all printed by C. Roworth, whose imprint appears at the bottom of the last page of type. The half-titles have no imprints on the versos, but can be distinguished from those of the second edition by the length of the rules (see facsimiles). The size of the edition has not been recorded. It was undoubtedly a small one, and Henry Austen stated that it was less than that of Mansfield Park, the small size of which had excited the astonishment of John Murray at a later day (Life, p. 311). Probably it consisted of only 1000 copies or even less, and this would account for the fact that Sense and Sensibility is so much the rarest of the novels at the present day. No part of the original MS. has survived. By July 3, 1813, every copy had been sold, and the author records that " it has brought me £140, besides the copyright, if that should ever be of any value " (Life, p. 272). A 20 per cent royalty on an edition of 1000 copies would have produced £150. Approximately £140 would have been produced by a 25 per cent royalty on an edition of 750 copies. A second edition was published in 1813 (see next entry).

Title: SENSE AND SENSIBILITY: A Novel. In three volumes. [rule] By the Author of "Pride and Prejudice". [rule] The Second Edition. Vol. I. [etc.] [double rule]. London: Printed for the Author, By C. Roworth, Bell-yard, Temple-bar, and published by T. Egerton, Whitehall. 1813.

Collation : Vol. I. [A]^{2} B-N^{12} O^{10} ; 156 leaves. Vol. II. [A]^{2} B-M^{12} N^{8} ; 142 leaves. Vol. III. [A]^{2} B-N^{12} O^{4} ; 150 leaves.

Contents : Vol. I. A1 half-title ; A2 title ; B1*a*-O9*b* (pp. 1-306) text ; O10 blank. Imprint of C. Roworth at bottom of O9*b*. Vol. II. A1 half-title ; A2 title ; B1*a*-N7*b* (pp. 1-278) text ; N8 blank. Imprint of C. Roworth at bottom of N7*b*. Vol. III. A1 half-title ; A2 title ; B1*a*-O3*b* (pp. 1-294) text ; O4 blank. Imprint of C. Roworth at bottom of O3*b*.

Binding, etc.: Brown paper boards. [Labels not known.] Wove paper, with watermark 1812 or AP/1811.

Copies: R. W. Chapman, R. Jennings, G. L. Keynes.

Note: The author introduced several alterations into the text of this edition, and one passage containing a reference to an improper subject (Novels, ed. Chapman, S. and S., p. 66) was omitted. Several small errors were admitted which have usually been reproduced in later reprints. All these are noted by Mr. Chapman. Again all three volumes were printed by C. Roworth, and the half-titles carry no imprints.

PRIDE AND PREJUDICE 12° 1813

Title: PRIDE AND PREJUDICE: A Novel. In three volumes. [rule] By the Author of "Sense and Sensibility." [rule] Vol. I. [etc.] [double rule]

London: Printed for T. Egerton, Military Library, Whitehall. 1813.

Collation: Vol. I. $[A]^2$ B-N^{12} O^8 P^2; 156 leaves. Vol. II. $[A]^2$ B-L^{12}; 122 leaves. Vol. III. $[A]^2$ B-O^{12} P^6; 164 leaves.

Contents: Vol. I. A1*a* half-title; A1*b* imprint of C. Roworth; A2 title; B1*a*-P2*a* (pp. 1-307) text. P2*b* blank. Imprint of C. Roworth at bottom of P2*a*. Vol. II. A1*a* half-title; A1*b* imprint of G. Sidney; A2 title; B1*a*-L12*a* (pp. 1-239) text; L12*b* blank. Imprint of G. Sidney at bottom of L12*a*. Vol. III. A1*a* half-title; A1*b* imprint of G. Sidney; A2 title; B1*a*-P6*a* (pp. 1-323) text; P6*b* blank. Imprint of G. Sidney at bottom of P6*a*.

Binding, etc.: Blue paper boards and brown paper back, with white paper label: [double rule] Pride and Prejudice. [line] I. [II. III.] [double rule]. (See facsimiles.) Size 18·5 × 11 cms., uncut. Wove paper, most of the sheets with watermark 1808. A few are dated 1812, or have a monogram watermark without date. The latter occurs only in vol. III.

Copies: BLO, BM, ULC.
R. W. Chapman, H. V. Jones collection, G. L. Keynes, Macgeorge collection, A. E. Newton.

Note: The first draft of Pride and Prejudice was made at Steventon between October 1796 and August 1797 under the title First Impressions after the composition of Elinor and Marianne (Memoir, p. 47). The author was then not yet twenty-one years old. The work may have been partially revised at Chawton in 1810 (Memoir, p. 95). Probably it was not fully revised until 1812, and the author records on January 29, 1813, that she has successfully "lop't and crop't" the book, so that it must now be rather shorter than Sense and Sensibility (Life, p. 261). It was not published until January 1813, when the success of Sense and Sensibility was already assured and the first edition almost sold out. The author received her first copy on January 27, and the book was advertised in the Morning Chronicle for January 28, 1813 (Life, p. 260). The copyright had been sold to Egerton for, apparently, £110 (Life, p. 272). The author's father, George Austen, had already offered the MS. of First Impressions to Cadell for publication in November 1797, but it was declined by return of post (Life, pp. 97-98), and no further negotiations with publishers have been recorded.

Pride and Prejudice was issued in boards at 18s. (Life, p. 260). The size of the edition is not known, but it was presumably larger than that of Sense and Sensibility, perhaps 1500 copies, so that the author does not seem to have concluded a good bargain when she sold the book outright for £110 (Life, p. 272). The first edition was sold off very rapidly and a second one was printed in the same year; a third was printed four years later (see next two entries).

It will be noticed that vol. I. of the first edition was printed by Roworth, whose imprint appears on the verso of the half-title and at the end of the text, whereas vols. II. and III. were printed by Sidney. In some copies the imprint on the verso of the half-title of vol. I. will be found to be that of Sidney. In such cases the half-title has been taken from copies of vols. II. or III. of the second edition (see facsimiles).

PRIDE AND PREJUDICE 12° 1813

Title: PRIDE AND PREJUDICE: A Novel. In three volumes. [rule] By the Author of "Sense and Sensibility." [rule] Vol. I. [etc.] Second edition. [double rule]. London: Printed for T. Egerton, Military Library, Whitehall, 1813.

Collation : As in the first edition.

Contents : Vol. I. As in the first edition, except that the printer's imprint at the end is at the bottom of P2*b* below a rule instead of being on P2*a*. Vols. II. and III. As in the first edition.

Binding, etc. : Grey paper boards and brown paper back, with white paper label: [double rule] Pride and Prejudice. [rule] Vol. I. [etc.] [double rule]. (See facsimiles.) Size 18·5 × 11 cms., uncut. Wove paper, most of the sheets with watermark 1812. In one copy examined the dates 1808 and 1813 also occurred in vol. III.

Copies :

R. W. Chapman, R. Jennings, G. L. Keynes.

Note : No alterations were made in this edition by the author, though " a few obvious misprints have been corrected " (Novels, ed. Chapman, P. and P., p. xii). She had noted a misprint in vol. III. p. 220, l. 3 [from bottom] (Life, p. 262), but this remained uncorrected in the second and third editions. Again vol. I. was printed by Roworth, vols. II. and III. by Sidney, as the imprints on the versos of the half-titles and at the end of the text indicate. (See facsimiles.) The author received her copy on November 4 or 5, 1813, and wrote to her sister on November 6, " since I wrote last my 2nd edit. has stared me in the face " (Life, p. 289).

PRIDE AND PREJUDICE 12° 1817

Title: PRIDE AND PREJUDICE: A Novel. In two volumes. [rule] By the Author of "Sense and Sensibility," &c. [rule] Vol. I. [II.] Third Edition. [double rule]. London: Printed for T. Egerton, Military Library, Whitehall. 1817.

Collation : Vol. I. [A]^{2} B-N^{12} O^{2} ; 148 leaves. Vol. II. [A]^{2} B-O^{12} ; 158 leaves.

Contents : Vol I. A1*a* half-title ; A1*b* imprint of C. Roworth ; A2 title ; B1*a*-O1*a* (pp. 1-289) text ; O1*b* imprint of C. Roworth ; O2 blank. Vol. II. A1*a* half-title ; A1*b* imprint of C. Roworth ; A2 title ; B1*a*-O12*a* (pp. 1-311) text ; O12*b* blank. Imprint of C. Roworth at bottom of O12*a*.

Binding, etc.: Blue paper boards, brown paper back. Pink paper labels : Pride and Prejudice [rule] Vol. I. [II.] [double rule] Third Edition. (See facsimiles.) Size 19 × 10·5 cms., uncut. Wove paper, with watermark 1815 or 1816. A copy in my own library, perhaps a publisher's remainder, is bound in one volume in brown cloth lettered on the back in gold : " Miss Austin's Pride and Prejudice ".

Copies : BM.
R. W. Chapman, G. L. Keynes (two copies), J. H. A. Sparrow.

Note : The chapters have been renumbered in this edition to suit the division into two volumes, and these new numbers have been reproduced in most later reprints. A number of further errors have crept into the text, which was not revised by the author. These are recorded by Mr. Chapman. Both volumes were printed by Roworth.

MANSFIELD PARK 12° 1814

Title: MANSFIELD PARK: A Novel. In three volumes. [rule] By the Author of "Sense and Sensibility," and "Pride and Prejudice." [rule] Vol. I. [etc.] [double rule]. London: Printed for T. Egerton, Military Library, Whitehall. 1814.

Collation: Vol. I. [A]^{2} B-Q^{12}; 182 leaves. Vol. II. [A]^{2} B-N^{12} O^{4}; 150 leaves. Vol. III. [A]^{2} B-Q^{12} R^{4}; 186 leaves.

Contents: Vol. I. A1*a* half-title; A1*b* imprint of G. Sidney; A2 title; B1*a*-Q12*b* (pp. 1-360) text. Imprint of G. Sidney at bottom of Q12*b*. Vol. II. A1*a* half-title; A1*b* imprint of C. Roworth; A2 title; B1*a*-O3*b* (pp. 1-294) text; O4 blank. Imprint of C. Roworth at bottom of O3*b*. Vol. III. A1*a* half-title; A1*b* imprint of G. Sidney; A2 title; B1*a*-R3*b* (pp. 1-354) text; R4*a* advt. of second editions of Sense and Sensibility and Pride and Prejudice; R4*b* blank. Imprint of G. Sidney at bottom of R3*b*.

Binding, etc.: Blue paper boards and brown paper backs. White paper labels: Mansfield Park [rule] I. [etc.] [double rule] Price 18s. (See facsimiles.) Size 18·5 × 11 cms., uncut. Wove paper, with watermark 1812.

Copies: BLO, BM.
R. Jennings, H. V. Jones collection, G. L. Keynes, Macgeorge collection, A. E. Newton.

Note: Mansfield Park is stated to have been begun about February 1811, and to have been completed

" soon after June, 1813 " (Life, p. 290). It was being read by Henry Austen between March 2 and 9, 1814, presumably in proof sheets (Life, pp. 293, 296). On May 23 and 27 it was advertised in the Morning Chronicle, and was no doubt published, again at 18s., at the end of May. The size of the edition was moderate, probably about 1500 copies, and John Murray, the publisher of the second edition, expressed his surprise thereat (Life, p. 311). Although " it was entirely sold out in the autumn " (Life, p. 296), no second edition was printed until 1816 (see next entry). The first edition of Mansfield Park is stated by Mr. Chapman to be far the worst printed of all the novels as regards both punctuation and verbal errors. No part of the original MS. has survived.

Vols. I. and III. were printed by Roworth, vol. II. by Sidney, as shown by the imprints. Three printers, not including Sidney, were employed for the second edition, so that the insertion of spurious half-titles in imperfect copies of the first edition can easily be detected.

An uncut copy in original boards in the collection of Mr. A. E. Newton has the unusual feature of labels on which the title, Mansfield Park, is printed longitudinally without the volume numbers or price. It seems probable that these labels are later additions.

MANSFIELD PARK 12° 1816

Title: MANSFIELD PARK: A Novel. In three volumes. [rule] By the Author of "Pride and Prejudice." [rule] Vol. I. [etc.]

[double rule] Second Edition. [double rule]. London: Printed for J. Murray, Albemarle-Street. 1816.

Collation : Vol. I. [A]^{2} B-Q^{12} ; 182 leaves. Vol. II. [A]^{2} B-N^{12} O^{4} ; 150 leaves. Vol. III. [A]^{2} B-P^{12} Q^{10} ; 180 leaves.

Contents : Vol. I. A1*a* half-title ; A1*b* imprint of J. Moyes ; A2 title ; B1*a*-Q12*b* (pp. 1-360) text. Imprint of J. Moyes at bottom of Q12*b*. Vol. II. A1*a* half-title ; A1*b* imprint of C. Roworth ; A2 title ; B1*a*-O3*b* (pp. 1-294) text ; O4 blank. Imprint of C. Roworth at bottom of O3*b*. Vol. III. A1*a* half-title ; A1*b* imprint of T. Davison ; A2 title ; B1*a*-Q9*b* (pp. 1-354) text ; Q10*a* blank ; Q10*b* imprint of T. Davison.

Binding, etc. : Original binding not known. Size uncut, 18·5 × 11 cms. Wove paper with watermark 1815.

Copies : BM.
R. W. Chapman, G. L. Keynes.

Note : The first edition of Mansfield Park had been sold out by November, 1814 (Life, p. 308). On November 30 Miss Austen visited the publisher, Egerton, to discuss the printing of a second edition (ibid.), but without result. It may have been Egerton's reluctance to take a reasonable risk which determined Miss Austen to forsake him and to turn to John Murray as her publisher. The reprinting of Mansfield Park followed the publication of Emma, negotiations concerning this having been begun with Murray in October 1815. On December 11, 1815, the author wrote to Murray : " I return also Mansfield Park as ready for a second edition, I believe, as I can make it" (Life, p. 318). Mr. Chapman surmises that this was a corrected copy of the first edition, not proofs of the second. He notes that the text of the second edition, as regards verbal errors and punctuation, is very much better than the first, though some difficulties still remain. More considerable alterations were made by the author in vol. III. pp. 150-151, as was first pointed out by the present writer in the Times Literary Supplement, August 30, 1923. Mr. Chapman also notes that the spelling in the second edition is not uniform. The three volumes were all printed in different offices, and each compositor followed the "rule of the house" rather than his copy.

EMMA 12° 1816

Title: EMMA: A Novel. In three volumes. [rule] By the Author of "Pride and Prejudice," &c. &c. [rule] Vol. I. [etc.] [double rule].

London: Printed for John Murray. [rule] 1816.

Collation: Vol. I. $[A]^2$ B-O^{12} P^6; 164 leaves. Vol. II. $[A]^2$ B-P^{12} Q^8; 178 leaves. Vol. III. $[A]^2$ B-Q^{12} R^2; 184 leaves.

Contents: Vol. I. A1 title; A2*a* dedication to the Prince Regent; A2*b* blank; B1*a*-P5*b* (pp. 1-322) text; P6*a* half-title; P6*b* imprint of C. Roworth. Imprint also at bottom of P5*b*. Vol. II. A1*a* half-title; A1*b* imprint of C. Roworth; A2 title; B1*a*-Q8*a* (pp. 1-351) text; Q8*b* imprint of C. Roworth.

Vol. III. A1*a* half-title ; A1*b* imprint of J. Moyes ; A2 title ; B1*a*-R2*a* (pp. 1-363) text ; R2*b* advt. of previous works. Imprint of J. Moyes at bottom of R2*a*.

Binding, etc. : Brown paper boards and back, or blue paper boards and darker blue back, with white paper labels : [double rule] Emma by The Author of Pride and Prejudice. Vol. I. [II. III.] [line] Price 1l. 1s. [double rule]. (See facsimiles.) Size 18·5 × 11 cms., uncut. Wove paper with watermark BUDGEN 1815, or with the date alone.

Copies : BLO, BM, ULC.
R. W. Chapman, R. Jennings, H. V. Jones collection, G. L. Keynes, Macgeorge collection, A. E. Newton.

Note : The composition of Emma is stated to have been begun on January 21, 1814, at Chawton (Life, p. 290), and to have been finished by March 29, 1815 (Life, p. 306), having been written more quickly than any of the previous works. Negotiations with John Murray concerning its publication were conducted by Henry Austen, and it appears from one of his letters that Murray's first offer for the copyright of Sense and Sensibility, Mansfield Park, and Emma amounted altogether to less than the sum the author has already cleared " by one very moderate edition " of Mansfield Park (Life, pp. 310-311). Emma had been read for Murray by William Gifford, editor of the Quarterly Review, who had " nothing but good to say " of the book (Memoir of Murray, 1891, vol. i. p. 282), and the negotiations seem to have ended satisfactorily, though the actual sum paid is not recorded. The firm of Murray has recently stated that 2000 copies of Emma were printed, and that of these 1250 were sold within a year (Life, p. 311). The three volumes were issued in boards at 21s. The work was not reprinted until Bentley's collected edition was published in 1833. Mr. Chapman notes that the text of Emma is very accurately printed (this time by Roworth and Moyes), but Miss Austen's letters show that she suffered much agitation by reason of the printers' dilatory methods (Life, pp. 314-316).

The collation of the first volume of Emma is peculiar in that the first sheet consisted only of the title-page and the dedication to the Prince Regent, while the half-title was printed on the last leaf, which would otherwise have been blank. If the binder has omitted to transfer the half-title to the beginning of the volume, it will appear, at first sight, to be imperfect.

[etc.] [double rule] 24s. (See facsimiles.) Size 19 × 10·5 cms., uncut. Wove paper with watermark AP 1816 2.

Copies: BLO, BM, ULC.
R. W. Chapman (two copies), R. Jennings, H. V. Jones collection, G. L. Keynes, Macgeorge collection, A. E. Newton.

Note: A considerable amount of discussion has centred round the composition of Northanger Abbey, and may be read in the Life, chap. xiii., and in Mr. Chapman's introductory note. The facts appear to be that the novel was written in 1797–98 with the title Susan (not to be confused with another work, Lady Susan), and that it was sold for £10 in the spring of 1803 to Messrs. Crosby & Co. of Stationers Hall Court, Henry Austen's agent, a Mr. Seymour, acting as intermediary. It was actually announced for publication in Crosby's Flowers of Literature, 1803, but in spite of this was not printed. On April 5, 1809, Jane Austen addressed a letter, a copy of which has been preserved, to " Crosbie & Co.", asking why the book had not been printed and offering to supply a copy of the MS. if the other draft had been lost. This letter was written from Southampton and signed M. A. D. (Life, p. 230). It was acknowledged by Richard Crosby, who offered in his reply to restore the MS. for the same sum as had been paid in 1803 (Life, p. 231), and there the matter was allowed to drop. Seven years later, in 1816, negotiations were re-opened and the MS. was bought back for £10, Crosby still being unaware of the identity of the author.

Miss Austen stated in her letter to Crosby that she possessed a second MS. of the novel, so that revisions may have been carried out at any time after 1803. The Advertisement was written in 1816. In 1809 a novel called Susan was published by another author, and Miss Austen changed the name of her work to Catherine. The publication of the book under this name was still being discussed in March 1817. Ultimately the name was changed to Northanger Abbey, and the novel was not printed until after the author's death, with a biographical note by her brother Henry.

Persuasion, the latest of the novels, was begun in 1815 and completed on July 18, 1816 (Life, p. 334). As is well known, chap. x. of the first draft was condemned and rewritten as chaps. x. and xi. of the published work. The MS. of the cancelled chapter, together with that of chapter xii., is the only portion of the MSS. of the novels that has escaped destruction. It has been several times printed, first with the Memoir, ed. 2, 1871 (see no. 191), and finally as a separate publication by the Clarendon Press, 1926 (no. 178).

The four volumes containing Northanger Abbey and Persuasion were advertised in the Morning Chronicle for December 19 and 20, 1817, and were published about that date at 24s. Mr. Chapman notes that although the proofs were not read by the author, the text is good. A few corrections, however, are recorded. The page numbers on pp. 190, 191 are reversed, and the catchwords on these two pages are incorrect.

The size of the edition is not known, but it seems probable that it exceeded 2000 copies, as the book is more commonly to be met with than any of the other novels. Northanger Abbey was printed by Roworth and Persuasion by Davison. None of the volumes has a half-title before the general title; a half-title is to be found, however, in each volume between the preliminary leaves and the first page of the text. Sometimes the binder has folded this back so that it comes before the title-page instead of before the text.

BENTLEY'S EDITION 1833

NOVELS BY MISS JANE AUSTEN. Complete in five volumes. Vol. I. [etc.] Sense and Sensibility. [etc.].

London: Richard Bentley, New Burlington Street. 1833.

17 cms., green cloth, white paper labels, yellow end-papers; engraved frontispiece and title by Greatbatch after Pickering inserted in each volume between the title and half-title.

Vol. I. Sense and Sensibility: pp. xv + [1] + 331 + [5].
„ II. Pride and Prejudice: pp. iv + 340.
„ III. Emma: pp. iv + 435 + [1].
„ IV. Mansfield Park: pp. iv + 424 + [4].
„ V. Northanger Abbey & Persuasion: pp. iv + 440.

Note: This, the first collected edition of the novels, was published in the same year as Bentley's separate issues in the series of Standard Novels. The separate issues (for which see next section, nos. 44, 69, 104, 123, 143) are differently bound and have a different title and half-title in each volume, but the sheets are otherwise the same. The whole of the separate issues were printed by A. & R. Spottiswoode, New-Street-Square, as shown by the imprints at the ends and on the versos of the title-pages. In the Collected Edition, on the other hand, titles and half-titles were printed by Samuel Bentley, Dorset Street, and were substituted for the others. In vols. II.-V. these two leaves form a separate quarter sheet, but in vol. I., where they form part of a complete sheet of eight leaves, they are cancel leaves. It is not possible to say, however, that either edition preceded the other, as they are likely to have been published at the same time.

In vol. I. the novel is preceded by a memoir of the author dated October 5, 1832, but unsigned. It is stated in an advertisement printed on the last two leaves of vol. IV. to have been written by the author's brother, the Rev. Mr. Austen, i.e. Henry Austen. The last two leaves in vol. I. are blank.

This collected edition in its original binding with labels is an uncommon book.

Reprinted in 1866 and 1869, and in 1878–79 with the addition of a sixth volume containing the Memoir of 1870 and a portrait. For the edition of 1866 see next entry; the other two I have not seen. The six volumes may also have been reprinted at other dates.

BENTLEY'S EDITION 1866

SENSE AND SENSIBILITY [etc.] A Novel. By Jane Austen. New Edition. [device]. London: Richard Bentley, New Burlington Street. Oliver & Boyd, Edinburgh. George Robertson, Melbourne. Little & Brown, Boston. 1866.

18 cms., five vols., brown cloth, lettered Austen's Novels, etc., on the spines. Each volume has an engraved frontispiece and title inserted as in the edition of 1833, with the dates altered to 1866.

Vol. I. Sense and Sensibility : pp. xv + [i] + 331 + [1].
„ II. Emma : pp. [iv] + 435 + [1].
„ III. Mansfield Park : pp. [iv] + 424.
„ IV. Northanger Abbey & Persuasion : [not collated].
„ V. Pride and Prejudice : pp. [iv] + 340.

Note : A reprint, without alteration, of the edition of 1833. Vol. IV. was missing from the only set of the volumes that I have seen. The number of the volumes is indicated only on the spines, and it was probably only by a binder's error that the order of the volumes was altered.

ED. R. W. CHAPMAN 1923

THE NOVELS OF JANE AUSTEN. The Text based on Collation of the Early Editions by R. W. Chapman. With Notes Indexes and Illustrations From Contemporary Sources In Five Volumes Volume I [etc.] Oxford At the Clarendon Press 1923

22·5 cms., ¼ canvas, marbled paper sides, paper labels.

Vol. I. Sense and Sensibility: pp. [ii] + xii + [ii] + 429 + [3]. Six illustrations and a plan of London inserted.

Vol. II. Pride and Prejudice: pp. [ii] + xiii + [i] + 415 + [1]. Eight illustrations inserted.

Vol. III. Mansfield Park: pp. [ii] + xii + [ii] + 567 + [1]. Eight illustrations inserted.

Vol. IV. Emma: pp. [ii] + xi + [iii] + 521 + [1]. Thirteen illustrations inserted.

Vol. V. Northanger Abbey and Persuasion (with the cancelled chapter): pp. [ii] + xiii + [i] + 252 + 310 + [2]. Eleven illustrations and a plan of Bath inserted; one illustration in the text.

Note: This edition is described on the verso of the half-title to each volume as: "Large-paper edition, limited to 1,000 sets, of which 950 are for sale". The type was used again in a cheaper "second edition" published in 1926 (see no. 41). The text is the most authoritative yet published, and is never likely to be improved. Each volume contains type facsimiles of the original title-pages, notes, and various appendixes giving Chronologies, Indexes of Characters, etc. The appendixes in vol. III. include a reprint of the fifth edition of Lovers' Vows. Vol. V. concludes with General Indexes of Literary Allusions, Real Persons, and Real Places. Some of the illustrations are executed in chromo-collotype.

The signatures in this edition are not uniform, those in vol. II. having the addition of PP at the left-hand corner.[1] This is due to the fact that the text of this volume was printed from type which had already been used for the reprint of Pride and Prejudice issued by the same publishers in 1912 (see no. 96). The other volumes were printed from type newly set up for the purpose. Vol. IV., unlike the other volumes, has two half-titles, one at the beginning of the volume and the other after the introductory note.

In 1925 the editor collected some : Additions and Corrections for the Second Edition of Jane Austen's Novels by R. W. Chapman, 22·5 cms., pp. 8, printed wrappers. Twenty-five copies of this were printed and distributed privately.

GEORGIAN EDITION 1927

SENSE AND SENSIBILITY [etc.] by Jane Austen with an introduction by John Bailey

London Eveleigh Nash & Grayson Limited 1927

[The works of Jane Austen Georgian Edition, vol. I. (-v.)]. 19·5 cms., cloth, or lambskin with coloured frontispiece in vol. I.

Vol. I. Sense and Sensibility : pp. xv + [i] + 562 + [2].
Vol. II. Pride and Prejudice : pp. xviii + 589 + [3].
Vol. III. Mansfield Park : pp. [ii] + xviii + 702 + [2].
Vol. IV. Emma : pp. xix + [i] + 714 + [2].
Vol. V. Northanger Abbey and Persuasion : pp. [ii] + xviii + 195 + [3].

Note : Each volume has an introduction by the editor, though there is no indication of the source of the text. The coloured portrait of Jane Austen which is found in vol. I. of the lambskin issue and on the wrapper of the cloth issue, was drawn by Mr. Charles Buchel from the engraving of the portrait by Cassandra Austen. The colours are based on the description given in the Memoir and Life.[1]

The Preface, unsigned, is by R. W. Chapman. The textual notes at the end record the author's erasures and interlineations. An account of the

MS. was given in the second edition of J. E. Austen-Leigh's Memoir, 1871 (see no. 191), but it had never been printed before the present edition. Issued in quarter canvas and blue paper boards with paper label. The title, Sanditon, appears only on the label. A limited edition of 250 copies was printed on hand-made paper, 19·5 cms., and bound in quarter white cloth and greenish paper boards with label as before. To this issue a collotype facsimile of the first page of the MS. was added as a frontispiece.

The original MS. of Sanditon is now in the possession of a great-great-niece of the author's friend, Anna Lefroy.

TWO CHAPTERS OF PERSUASION

1926

TWO CHAPTERS OF PERSUASION Printed from Jane Austen's Autograph With a Facsimile

Oxford at the Clarendon Press 1926

17·5 cms., pp. [viii] + 39 + [21].

This volume contains chapters 10 and 11 of Persuasion as first written. Two new chapters were afterwards written in place of chapter 10, and chapter 11 became chapter 12. This fragment is the only surviving portion of the author's MSS. of the novels.

The Preface, unsigned, is by R. W. Chapman. At the end is a list of variants from the MS., the Memoir, ed. 2, 1871, and from the first edition of Persuasion, 1818 (see no. 9). Issued in quarter canvas and blue paper boards with paper label:

Persuasion, on the spine. A limited edition of 250 was printed on hand-made paper, 19·5 cms., and bound in quarter white cloth and greenish boards with label as before. To this issue was added, before the half-title, a collotype facsimile of the original MS. on 16 small leaves, 15 × 9 cms. This MS. is now in the British Museum.

THE WATSONS 1927

THE WATSONS A Fragment by Jane Austen Now reprinted from the manuscript

Oxford At the Clarendon Press 1927

17·5 cms., pp. [iv] + 121 + [47]. The anonymous editor and writer of the Preface is R. W. Chapman. At the end is a long list of alterations in the MS. and variations in the edition of 1871, the fragment having been first printed with the second edition of J. E. Austen Leigh's Memoir. Issued in quarter canvas and blue paper boards with paper label: The Watsons, on the spine. A limited edition of 250 copies was printed on hand-made paper, 19·5 cms., and bound in quarter white cloth and greenish paper boards with label as before. A collotype facsimile of a page of the MS. is added as frontispiece.

The original MS. of the first twelve pages of The Watsons is now in the Pierpont Morgan Library, New York. The remainder is in the possession of members of the author's family.

THE WATSONS 1928

THE WATSONS by Jane Austen Completed in accordance with her intentions by Edith (her great grand-niece) and Francis Brown

Elkin Mathews & Marrot Ltd. 54 Bloomsbury Street London, W.C.1 MDCCCCXXVIII

18·5 cms., pp. 183 + [1]. Quarter cloth, printed boards.

Mrs. Brown believes that Jane Austen would have completed this novel herself had the story not been " too near her own life ". In 1850 Jane Austen's niece wrote a novel in three volumes, entitled The Younger Sister, based on the fragment of The Watsons, and continued as her aunt meant to continue it. The third volume, however, had lost all connection with Jane Austen's story, and in the present volume Mr. and Mrs. Brown have tried to disentangle Jane Austen's share in the later part and therewith to complete The Watsons.

ALFRED LORD TENNYSON A Memoir by his Son

London: Macmillan and Co. 1897

Vol. II. pp. 371-2: "He would read and re-read [Thackeray's Novels] as well as Walter Scott's and Miss Austen's novels. His comments on . . . Miss Austen were: . . . The realism and life-likeness of Miss Austen's Dramatis Personæ come nearest to those of Shakespeare—Shakespeare, however, is a sun to which Jane Austen, tho' a bright and true little world, is but an asteroid."
